

STUDY ENVIRONMENTAL LAW IN COMO, ITALY

MAY 29-JUNE 10, 2016

Enjoy two weeks studying comparative environmental law in the heart of Europe

International comparative environmental law seminar (Critical topics in environmental law in a comparative perspective)

The International Comparative Environmental Law Seminar in Como, Italy is jointly presented by the University of California, Davis School of Law and the University of Insubria School of Law.

This intensive, two-week program provides a unique opportunity for law students and legal professionals to study environmental law by examining and comparing European Union and U.S. environmental law policies and regulatory regimes. Topics include pollution control laws (air and water), hazardous waste laws, protection and preservation of plant and animal species, regulation and liability for environmental harm, and climate change, the next generation of environmental law.

Students will also have the opportunity to visit legal institutions and learn about the rich environmental and historical culture of Como and Milan. Classes are taught in English.

THE LOCATION

Como, Italy, is centrally located in the heart of Europe. The stunning city of Como, situated in proximity to Milan and Lugano, Switzerland, provides a sophisticated intellectual and legal environment in which to study comparative environmental law. Classes will be held at the University of Insubria School of Law.

FACULTY

Environmental law experts, including Professor Richard Frank from the University of California, Davis School of Law, and Professor Barbara Pozzo, from the University of Insubria School of Law, lead the nine thematic class sessions. Professor Frank is the director of the California Environmental Law and Policy Center. Professor Pozzo is an international expert in the field of Comparative Environmental Law. She is working for various European and Italian institutions in drafting environmental policies and is part of selected expert groups.
