Workshop Invitation

The Bergamo Symposium On Recent Trends in International Law and Cooperation will be held in May 2016 in Bergamo (Italy)

The Bergamo Symposium On Recent Trends in International Law and Cooperation will be a special interest meeting devoted to scholarly research, writing and discourse. This interdisciplinary workshop is an opportunity for scholars, students and policy makers to present papers and engage in discourse relevant to international law in the era of globalization. A significant part of our workshop will be devoted to international human rights law, sustainable development, displacement, private international law and humanitarian issues.

This interdisciplinary workshop seeks to bring to the table academics and professionals from the realms of law, human rights, sociology of law, papers and engage in discourse relevant to global environmental issues and its effects on human welfare and progress.

A significant part of our meeting will be focused on recently published book concerning international law aspects of development-induced displacement and resettlement (Bogumil Terminski, Development-Induced Displacement and Resettlement: Causes, Consequences and Socio-Legal Context, Columbia University Press, New York, 2015).

You are invited to attend as an observer. If you wish to present a paper you will be requested to submit a brief abstract for review by the Programme Committee. Papers presented will be subsequently peer reviewed by external readers.
