THE UNIVERSITIES

The University of California, Davis School of Law and University of Insubria School of Law in Como, Italy, have collaborated to provide the International Comparative Environmental Law Seminar in Como Italy, for qualified J.D. students from American law schools, law students from countries in the European Union and Russia as well as interested international legal practitioners. We will welcome a maximum of 25 participants to this exceptional program.

About University of Insubria School of law

Established in 1998, the University of Insubria is housed in the old cloister of a former Benedictine church, built in the 16th century and an important example of Lombard Romanesque architecture. The university has the distinction of being one of the first Italian universities to feature a bi-polar network system involving the two main centers of Como and Varese, as well as other satellite centers, under the single insignia of the Universitas Studiorum Insubriae. The University of Insubria School of Law strives to create cultural homogeneity by giving voice to strong identifying values and transforming them into vital cultural ventures.

About the University of California, Davis School of Law

UC Davis is one of the premier public institutions of higher education in the United States. The University of California, Davis School of Law is a top tier U.S. law school alongside Harvard, Yale, Stanford, UC Berkeley and UCLA, and is noted for its exceptional academic educational opportunities. Its diverse specialties include environmental, public interest, and international and comparative law.

INTERNATIONAL COMPARATIVE ENVIRONMENTAL LAW SEMINAR

Critical Topics in Environmental Law in a Comparative Perspective

May 30-June 10, 2016

The International Comparative Environmental Law Seminar in Como, Italy is jointly presented by the University of California, Davis School of Law and the University of Insubria School of Law.

This intensive, two-week program provides a unique opportunity law students and legal professionals to study environmental law by examining and comparing European Union and U.S. environmental law policies and regulatory regimes. Topics include pollution control laws (air and water), hazardous waste laws, protection and preservation of plant and animal species, climate change—the next generation of environmental law—and regulation and liability for environmental harm.

Students will also have the opportunity to visit legal institutions and learn about the rich environmental and historical culture of Como and Milan. Classes are taught in English.

Environmental law experts, including Professor Barbara Pozzo from the University of Insubria School of Law, Professor Richard Frank from the University of California, Davis School of Law, and other European Union Law specialists lead the nine thematic class sessions.

Location—Como, Italy

Como, Italy, is centrally located in the heart of Europe. The stunning city of Como provides the ideal location for intellectual reflection and discussion of environmental issues. The locale, situated in proximity to Milan and Lugano, Switzerland, provides a sophisticated legal environment in which to study comparative environmental law.

Faculty

RICHARD M. FRANK, J.D., is a Professor of Environmental Practice and director of the California Environmental Law and Policy Center (CELPC). Formerly the executive director of the Center for Law, Energy and the Environment (CLEE) at the UC Berkeley School of Law, Frank returned to UC Davis School of Law where he teaches courses in environmental law. Frank also practiced law with federal and state agencies for 32 years, most of that time with the California Department of Justice. Immediately before joining the UC Berkeley School of Law, he served as California's Chief Deputy Attorney General for Legal Affairs.

Professor Frank's detailed biography.

BARBARA POZZO, Ph.D., graduated in 1989 from the Law School in Milan. In the same year she was awarded a scholarship by the University of Florence to attend a Ph.D. program in Comparative Law. From 1989 to 1993—during her Ph.D. program—she spent numerous periods of research and teaching abroad, especially in Germany, France and United States. In this period she was visiting professor at the University of Hamburg (Germany) and University of Montpellier (France). She also spent time doing research in the United States (Louisiana State University, Miami Law School and the University of California Berkeley School of Law (Boalt Hall)).

At the School of Law at the University of Insubria, Pozzo is on the editorial board of the European Review of Private Law (Kluwer Law International). She specializes in multilingualism and its impact on European harmonization, and since 2001 has been the director of a research project on “The Development of a European Legal Terminology” in the field of Contract Law.

She is currently working for various European and Italian institutions in drafting environmental policies and is part of selected expert groups.
